

Support is ending for some versions of Windows

- Support for Windows Vista without any service packs ended on April 13, 2010.
- Support for Windows XP with Service Pack 2 (SP2) ended on July 13, 2010.*

If you're running one of these versions after support ends, you won't get security updates for Windows.

- ⊕ Which version and service pack am I running?
- ⊕ What does end of support mean?

PLEASE DON'T RUN TOWARDS THE EXITS!

WIN XP SP-2 ALERT!
All Windows XP support will eventually end. Is it time to plan your upgrade to the Windows 7 OS?

Read the full announcement here: <http://windows.microsoft.com/en-us/windows/help/end-support-windows-xp-sp2-windows-vista-without-service-packs?os=other>

– It's time to upgrade and plan for migration to Windows 7...

Win 7 is out – well reviewed, customers love it, and it's prettier and more usable than any previous OS, including MAC. XP on the other hand, is 8 years old – and looks and acts like a highly patched, creaky O/S, when compared to the current crop of Win7 Quad Core based PCs.

With the end of support for XP SP-2 (0713-10) Microsoft is asking us to calmly walk to the exits before the edifice becomes unsafe... This is the last call to smoothly transition to the Win 7 platform before the security issues and creaky technology really start to take a toll on office productivity.

Win 7 is the most compatible, most driver supported Windows ever. It's also the best selling at over 90 million sold since OCT 2009. By the way, Windows OS outsells MAC 29 to 1 worldwide (2009 data). For old apps there's even an XP Virtual mode that provides a place to run legacy applications from your Windows 7 desktop! Windows 7 Business Edition is affordable at $195 plus installation. Upgrading from Vista is easiest, however most pre 2006 XP users should get a new PC with their WIN7.

For upgrade and data migration assistance contact:
John Compton, Avenue 18 Computer
310 829-3129 Visit us at: www.avenue18.com